

Bio of Alice D'Emilio

Alice D'Emilio began her career with the City of Hollywood as the Nursery Supervisor in 1998. She then became the Grounds and Urban Forestry Supervisor in 2012. Many of her efforts helped the City of Hollywood obtain the Tree City Award. She had over 35 years of South Florida Horticultural experience. She held a B.S degree in Horticulture from the University of Maryland and was a Certified Arborist since 2006. Alice also had a Master's degree from Nova Southeastern University and was the City's Arborist. Her love for the environment could only be compared by her love to her husband, Cesare who she married in March of 2005.

Alice was a true professional who loved her job, took great pride in her work and enhanced the beauty of many of our roadways, facilities and parks throughout the City of Hollywood. Alice assisted schools, civic and business associations in various ways including grant requests and teaching gardening classes. She participated in many open houses, coordinated volunteer Arbor Day events and always took time to teach children and adults the beauty of nature.

Alice contributed to the landscape designs and plant selection for various City parks including Lincoln Park. Alice also took on additional duties such as oversight of Right of Way Maintenance contracts, oversight in management of citywide tree inspections and requests for tree removals and oversight of the City's Tree Crew.

She received the City's most prestigious employee award, the Diamond Service Award in 2006 and was the Department's Employee of the Year in 2005.
