On February 21st, 2025, the crews of Rescue 231, Engine 45, and EMS 31 responded to a life-threatening emergency involving a man in cardiac arrest—and saved his life not once, but twice.

When crews arrived, they found the man unresponsive on his couch, struggling to breathe and showing signs of severe distress. Without hesitation, the first responders began life-saving medical interventions. Their relentless effort was successful and the crews were able to restore his pulse. But the situation remained critical. On the way to the hospital, the patient went into cardiac arrest again. Once more, the crew quickly responded—performing CPR and administering care that brought him back a second time.

By the time they arrived at Memorial Regional Hospital, the patient was beginning to respond to his name. Thanks to the fast action, coordination, and dedication of our city's emergency responders, this patient was given a real second chance at life. We salute our first responders for their continued commitment to excellence and for always answering the call when it matters most.
